PASTOR'S CORNER

In the current Sunday cycle of the Lectionary for Mass, we're working through the Gospel of Luke (for the most part). There's a lot of stuff in Luke that has no parallel in any of the other Gospels: such as the Annunciation and most of the infancy narrative, the parable of the Prodigal Son, and in today's reading we get another: the parable of the Good Samaritan.

We know well the main outlines of the passage: Jesus enunciates the two-fold law of love of God and love of neighbor, and immediately someone asks "who is my neighbor?" Not a bad question. Instead of prosaically answering the question directly, Jesus answers in good Rabbinic style by telling a story and then asking a question of his own. A man—a Jew—is beaten by bandits and left for dead, and then ignored by two privileged members of the Jewish nation, a priest and a Levite. He is eventually helped, but by a Samaritan. And Jews hated Samaritans, and vice-versa. Yet it is the Samaritan, not the priest or Levite, who lifts him onto his own beast of burden and gets him lodging and medical attention all out of his own pocket, and promises even more help if needed. After the story, Jesus asks the question: Who showed himself a neighbor to the man? They cannot even say, "the Samaritan," so they say, "the one who treated him with mercy." "Go and do likewise," Jesus says.

But notice a peculiar wrinkle in the dialogue: Jesus is asked "who is my neighbor?"—in other words, "whom must I love?" You would think the neighbor in the story would be the victim, but in fact, as Jesus tells it, it's the Samaritan: "which of the three was neighbor to the robbers' victim?" In other words, the dialogue begins with the question "whom must I love?" and ends with Jesus' question, "who is the one that shows love?"

Of course, "neighbor" is a reciprocal term of relationship: if you're the neighbor of another, that other is your neighbor, by definition. And neighbors, in the Kingdom of God, are to love one another. Love should be mutual. But we only have control of one end of this relationship, however, ourselves. We must love our neighbor, and our neighbor is, in a word, "everyone else." Our neighbors are not for us to choose; they are given to us. But whether our relationships are with people of our own choosing (friends, spouses) or those providentially given, fulfilling the perfect law of God means loving them. Not liking them, but loving them, and perhaps even discovering it's easier to love those we once disliked, by the transforming power of God's love. For many have discovered that the cause of dislike was actually in the disliker and not in the disliked. God's grace is greater than ourselves, so much greater, and if we're called to eternal friendship with all other human beings, is it so surprising that God should want us to start habituating ourselves to loving them now?

I mentioned that Fr. Athanasius (our August help) would be giving a lecture series on Evangelization. Those talks will be August 2, 9, 16, and 23, at 7:00 p.m., in Rosary Hall. Save the dates! —Fr. Peter

You'll notice a large, 2-page advertisement on the following pages for a pilgrimage in October to the California Missions. There's a reason I'm plumping for it. You see, if 20 of our parishioners register for it, I (your beloved pastor) get to go for free.

Even if we don't manage that many—and even if I wind up not going—you should consider this trip. First, it's being hosted by Patrick Madrid, a great Catholic writer and radio host, and also a great friend of the Dominicans (parishioner at St. Patrick's in Columbus). And being with Bishop Wall during those days and hearing his preaching would be a great grace.

Moreover, pilgrimages are good for the soul and spiritually refreshing, and in days when many are reasonably reluctant to risk traveling abroad, this is a pilgrimage to holy sites in our own fair land.

Please consider going on this pilgrimage. —Fr. Peter
